STATION AS A KEY STRATEGY FOR SUSTAINABLE REGIONAL REGENERATION

SEOUL RAILWAY STATION

Yekyeong, SHIN
Assistant Professor, Namseoul University, South Korea

Session 2-B Station design around the world

17-18 October 2013
Part 1. Transformation of Seoul Railway Station

Part 2. Long Term Plan for Performing as a Main Gate to SEOUL

Part 3. Station for Seoul’s Sustainable Regeneration
Seoul Railway Station, Nowadays
It has been staying for 113 years.
The transformation. (It changed.)

Mrs. Shin - Namseoul University - Station as a Key strategy for Sustainable Regional Regeneration

1925  1950  early 1960’s
1976  1989  2010

17-18 October 2013
Long Term Plan for Performing as a Main Gate to Seoul

- Development of International Service Centered Multi-Complex
  - Installation of the convention centered international service function
  - Revitalization of the complex function through organizing the surroundings

- Implementation of Various Historical-Cultural Facilities
  - Formation of historical-cultural points on the park and green axes
  - Secure of venues through park and national icon business

- Introduction of Diverse Supporting Facilities
  - Introduce accommodations that can support international service functions
  - Install various culture and sales facilities
High-Speed Railway Station

New Main Gate toward Seoul

- Modernization of Station Building
- Constructing new Cultural Platform by Restoring old Station
- Connecting KORAIL Airport Railroad (Seoul-Incheon)
- Integrated Transfer System

Mrs. Shin - Namseoul University - Station as a Key strategy for Sustainable Regional Regeneration

17-18 October 2013
Main Spot for the Construction of National Symbolic Streets

- Space for Historical Regeneration
- Seoul Master Plan for ‘Landscape Urban Recreation Axis the Construction of National Symbolic Streets’
- CITY CENTER AXIS 1: Historical Street
  Geongbok Palace – Seoul Railway Station

Mrs. Shin - Namseoul University - Station as a Key strategy for Sustainable Regional Regeneration
Mrs. Shin - Namseoul University - Station as a Key strategy for Sustainable Regional Regeneration

- the Recognition of the Historical Value of the Old Seoul Station building
- The Restoration of the Old Seoul Station Building & Construction of the Cultural Space
Seoul Railway Station as a Key Strategy for Urban Regeneration

- Master plan for ‘Development plan for the Northern Area of the Seoul Station’
  - Construction the Key Place as International Facilities
  - Urban restructuring by Installing various culture and sales facilities
  - Revitalization of the complex function through organizing the surroundings
...Thank you for your kind attention

Prof. SHIN. Y
Assistant Professor Department of Architectural Engineering, Namseoul University shinyekyeong@gmail.com
shinyk77@nsu.ac.kr
+82-10-3710-6809

Mrs. Shin - Namseoul University - Station as a Key strategy for Sustainable Regional Regeneration

17-18 October 2013